*The visit to the museum “Literary life of the Urals in the 20th century” and to the literary-memorial museum of Dmitry Mamin-Sibiryak
(12-13 September)*

*Sightseeing city tour with a visit to the border “Europe –Asia” and excursion to Ganina Yama (Ganin Pit)
(14 September 2013)*

Stela "Europe - Asia". In August 2004, 30 km from Ekaterinburg at the crossing of the border between Europe and Asia the symbol “Europe – Asia” was erected. At the foundation of the symbol two stones were laid, symbolizing the unity of the two parts of the world: one stone was brought from the most extreme point of Europe – Cape Roca, another one from the extreme edge of the Asian continent – Cape Dezhnev. None of the tourists remains indifferent to the border between Europe and Asia. It is a symbol of open space, a synthesis of two civilizations.

Ganina Yama (Ganin Pit) is only 17 km from Ekaterinburg. The place itself is an abandoned mine, where the remains of Czar Nickolay II and his family were brought. At this place in 2000 the construction of the monastery “In the name of Saint Regal Passion Bearers” was started. Later seven temples were built at this place (according to the number of murdered members of czarist family). Every year pilgrimages are undertaken to Ganina Yama, religious processions as well as church services are held.
